

EXT. NYC STREET - DAY

The Bowery. Gentrified but still has an edge to it.

ANDREW "ANDY" WARREN, 6, holds his grandfather's hand. His parents call him Andrew, he prefers Andy.

BRODERICK "ROCKY" WARREN, 60s, his grandfather, looks at 315 BOWERY STREET with a curious eye. A gray pony tail highlights his hippie aesthetic.

Scrawled in green spray paint behind where the club's awning used to be - CBGB'S forever. The windows and doors now boarded over and covered in graffiti.

ROCKY

A place of magic. It smelled like old wood, sweat and dreams.

HILLY KRISTAL (O.S.)

Get a job, hippie.

HILLY KRISTAL, 74, the club's owner, a bear of a man whose hair and beard have gone gray, strides into view.

Menacing and laid back at the same time, he'll hug you one day, yell at you the next, but you know he still loves you.

ROCKY

Be happy to, when and if you clean those bathrooms.

HILLY KRISTAL

That time has passed. So...?

ROCKY

I heard. And wanted to share it.

(re: Andy)

Was hoping he could one day feel what it's like on that tiny stage.

HILLY KRISTAL

Yeah, well...

Hilly's voice trails off, a hint of sadness. A crack in his otherwise brusque facade.

HILLY KRISTAL (CONT'D)

I don't turn over the keys until Friday. Come on, I'll buy you a drink.

INT. CBGB'S - CONTINUOUS

Rocky plops onto a corner barstool, Hilly pulls him a draft.

HILLY KRISTAL
Hey kid, want a Fresca?

Andy wanders the room. It's a little more shiny and brightly lit than in its grimy heyday but otherwise it's the same.

Stickers line the walls. Alongside, next to and on top of posters and flyers for acts that mostly no longer exist.

He runs a finger through names scratched into the wood. Listens to the floor creek.

Wanders backstage, crinkles his nose near the men's room.

A yellowed, dog-eared flyer drops from a wall. Andy picks it up. Heads back to Rocky.

ANDY
Who is this?

ROCKY Iggy Pop. The Godfather of Punk.

HILLY KRISTAL
The last one I expected to still be alive and kicking.

ANDY
He's weird.

ROCKY
A character, for sure.

HILLY KRISTAL
They all were. David. Lou. Tom. Stiv. Wendy.

Andy takes the flyer back from Rocky.

HILLY KRISTAL (CONT'D)
And Joey. They're all gone.

ANDY Joey?

ROCKY
Sounds normal, huh?
(off Andy's nod)
Nothing normal about him.

HILLY KRISTAL
It was the seventies. What can I tell ya?

Rocky's phone rings. He flips it open, flinches.

ROCKY
Your dad. We'd better hit it.

He drops $5 onto the bar.

HILLY KRISTAL
What the fuck is that?

ROCKY
For old time sake...

Rocky leads Andy to the exit, puts a finger to his lips.

ROCKY (CONT'D)
How about we keep this trip down nostalgia lane to ourselves?

HILLY KRISTAL
My joint's all a sudden not good enough for ya?

ROCKY
No offense, old friend, my son wouldn't be happy if he knew I brought him.

HILLY KRISTAL
Whatever happened to peace and love?

ROCKY
It skipped a generation.

For the first time, Hilly cracks a grin. Rocky smiles back even bigger. They lock eyes with a long, wistful nod goodbye.

INT. ROCKY'S HIPPIE VAN - DAY (MOVING)

Rocky drives, glances in his rearview mirror at Andy, in a carseat in the back row.

Andy looks at the Iggy flyer.

ROCKY
Did you have fun, kiddo?

Without looking up from the flyer.

ANDY

Yeah.

ROCKY

Me, too. I'm going to miss that place.

"Marquee Moon" by Television, comes on the radio.

Rocky perks up, turns up the volume. Taps the steering wheel.

ROCKY (CONT'D)

I'm in Heaven when I hear this.

(to Andy)

These guys never got their due.

ANDY

Who?

ROCKY

Television. They started it all for CBGB's. Without them, the scene would've never happened.

Andy listens, smiles at Rocky. And that makes Rocky smile even bigger.

ROCKY (CONT'D)

We're here.

Andy looks back down to the flyer.

Rocky turns the wheel, stops along a curb. Looks out his window as he puts the van in park.

ROCKY (CONT'D)

(to himself)

Here goes nothing.

(to Andy)

Remember, today's our little secret?

EXT. WARREN MCMANSION - DAY

An amazing, beautiful home with a well manicured lawn.

LENNON "JOHN" WARREN, 30s, waits by the front door, checks his watch. He's everything Rocky isn't. No nonsense, formal and exudes money.

He rebelled against his hippie upbringing. Legally changed his name from Lennon to John because it was more suited for the business world.

The side door to Rocky's vintage Volkswagen Minivan pops open. Andy bounds out, flyer in hand, races to John.

ANDY
Are you a big fan of Iggy?

John's jaw clenches, lips purse.

ANDY (CONT'D)
He's alive and kicking.

JOHN
Andrew... say goodbye to your grandfather.

Rocky gives Andy a big squeeze, whispers.

ROCKY
I thought we were going to keep this quiet?

ANDY
Oops, sorry... bye!

Andy runs inside.

JOHN
We've talked about this.

ROCKY
I know, I just thought--

JOHN
No, you didn't think. You never do, you just... you complain you don't get to see him enough, then you pull this... I don't even know what to say anymore... goodbye, Dad.

INT. WARREN MCMANSION - ANDY'S ROOM - DAY

SUPER: TWENTY YEARS LATER

Andy, now mid-20s, checks his look in the mirror. Puts his guitar case over his shoulder.

Smiles at a cork board on the wall. In the middle of it, a yellowed, dog-eared flyer - Iggy Pop.

He straightens it, pushes the pin tight. Heads out the door with a smile.